New Self-Service Design Station at the Hughes Main Library
Free graphic design software for library card holders

Greenville, SC – The Technology Center at the Hughes Main Library is now offering free resources for web and graphic design. The Self-Service Design Station is available for public use through generous funding from the Friends of the Greenville County Library System.

The Self-Service Design Station includes the Adobe Creative Suite 3 Design Premium software, as well as additional complementing software. For those who are unfamiliar with the Adobe Creative Suite programs, online video tutorials, provided by Lynda.com, may be viewed on an adjacent computer.

Greenville County Library System library card holders may use the new design station at no charge for a three-hour time limit, which may be extended if no other patron is waiting to use it. Patrons are encouraged to bring their own removable storage device, such as a flash memory drive or card, to save their work.

Additional Adobe Suite Premium CS3 programs:
